Crowds Must Attend This Suit Selling.

Progress is a sure sign of success. We have had the most successful business in the past six weeks in our Suit Department, which has very nearly equaled the entire season of any past year. Inspired with such wonderful progress, we shall start a sale to-morrow, which, in point of elegance, magnitude, and values, will outrank anything of its kind ever held in this or any other city.

Intensely Interesting Store News

That will make profitable reading is crowded into this page. These items were selected to attract your attention at a casual glance. We know your every-day wants, which you have taught us by your daily callings. Your confidence in our methods has brought us forth as one of the leading lights of the mercantile firmament. Then why should we darken our own path by causing an eclipse by offering unwarranted values for the sake of a short-lived trade?

The Busy Corner.

That Lining Department of Ours

Is a whole store in itself. It occupies more space, employs more people, and sells more Linings than any two stores put together. What's the cause of it? We surely are not the only Lining people in town. The only explanation we can make is that our goods are of the highest standard, our selections large and varied, and our quotations the very low cost that can possibly be made.

One Particularly Big Wash Goods Value.

We invariably start the week with one star attraction in this line. Such a thing as being unable to work in this weekly surprise is out of the question. All that we are obliged to do is to drop a line to the manufacturers, and just the time it takes to pack and ship us the goods, they are here. In reference to tomorrow's bargain, we have an exceedingly fine quality of Silk Mousseline de Soie, in the most dainty and chic Parisian designs and colorings. Among them you will find White, Cream, Black, every known shade of Helio, Blue and Pink, Nile Green, Yellow, Cerise, Cardinal, Red, Light Grey, Dark Grey, Tan, and a host of others, numbering more than 25 distinct colorings. They are all perfect goods, with white pieces from which to cut your pattern. It's an exceedingly sheer fabric of a lasting finish. This offer holds good as long as the fabric lasts. It's a grade you'd never expect to find at... 39c

This is the Time for Big Dress Goods Sale

And we are going to have it this week. Not that we are overstocked or overcrowded, that only happens when the season is stubborn—we wish to pass April a year ago, which was the biggest month we ever had in the Wool Dress Goods. We look to you to assist us in this big undertaking. The prices we have made on many lines are quotations which are seldom made so early in the season, although it's much easier to get the crowd when goods are in demand; it is still better to make early sacrifices and clear our shelves.

McIN DECLARED GUILTY

The Jury Convicts Him of the Murder of Robert Turner.

A Verdict Reached on the First Ballot—The Crime Regarded as a Heinous and Cold-Blooded One—The Circumstances Related to the Dubious Story Told by the Accused.

Charles L. McIn was yesterday found guilty, in Criminal Court No. 1, Justice Chas. B. B. presiding, of the murder of Robert Turner, on December 29 last. The jury which heard the testimony for and against the defendant did not qualify its verdict, and thereby virtually fixed the punishment for the crime to be death upon the gallows. Under the act of Congress of January 12, 1898, juries in capital cases are empowered to qualify their verdict by adding to the word "guilty" the words "without capital punishment." In such an event the punishment is also fixed by the verdict to be imprisonment in the penitentiary for life.

The testimony in the case was concluded Friday afternoon. The trial commenced Tuesday, and up to the time when the defendant went upon the witness stand to testify in his own behalf no one except himself and his counsel had the remotest idea what his line of defense would be. To the surprise of all who heard his story, McIn claimed that Turner's death was due entirely to an accident, for which the deceased was wholly to blame.

The story of the circumstances connected with the killing of Turner, as related by the defendant, was without the slightest claim to plausibility. The jury returned from the consultation room in less than an hour with a verdict of "guilty as indicted." During the hour which the jury was out of the court room, the members also ate their dinners, and it is reported that a verdict of guilty was arrived at on the first ballot taken.

McIn was represented by Tracy L. Jeffords, and Representative James D. Richardson, of Tennessee. The latter, however, did not take an active part in the defense, and acted only as advisory counsel. The Government was represented by United States Attorney Anderson and Assistant District Attorney Gould. The deceased was a native of Greenville, S. C., and the defendant had lived the greater part of his life in Rutherford County, Tenn.

McIn had been convicted of murder in Tennessee and was sentenced to a term of ten years in the penitentiary. After serving a year, however, he was pardoned. Besides this, it was shown that the defendant was a man of very bad temper and held human life lightly.

The testimony offered by the Government showed the crime which he committed to be one of the most deliberate and cold blooded ever recorded in the district. It was committed about 6 p. m., on the day mentioned, in the presence of Miss Bertha Brown, a girl sixteen years of age, and to whom, it is said, both the accused and the deceased had paid marked attention. Miss Brown lived with her mother, Mrs. Sarah Brown, at 191 E. Seventh Street northeast, and it was in front of her house the tragedy occurred. Turner came to Washington March 1898, and obtained employment on the Metropolitan Railroad as a motorman. McIn conducted a small store at 2 Eleventh Street northeast.

On the evening on which Turner was killed he was met at the corner of Eleventh and East Capitol Streets by Miss Brown, and together they walked toward the latter's home. On their way they met McIn, Miss Brown asked her companion not to leave her, as she feared McIn. Turner remained with the young woman until she reached her home. As he was about to leave her at the door, McIn rushed upon him and struck him a hard blow on the head with his fist. Turner was felled to the ground, and it is stated, McIn bent over and struck him more blows. When the first blow was struck, Miss Brown screamed and several people ran to her assistance, but not in time to prevent McIn from continuing his assault upon Turner.

When Turner was picked up he was unconscious. He was bleeding profusely from a wound in his head. He was taken to the Emergency Hospital for treatment. He lingered until the next morning at 9 o'clock, when he died without having regained consciousness.

After inflicting the fatal blow McIn followed Turner into Mrs. Brown's house, where the knife from him was taken to await the arrival of the hospital ambulance.

It was shown that McIn had, in the presence of several people, threatened to kill Turner if he ever found him in company with Miss Brown. Soon after it was learned that Turner was mortally wounded, it was testified to by witnesses for the Government, McIn admitted having inflicted the death blow. The knife with which Turner was killed was proven to belong to the defendant; he admitted it was his.

When testifying in his own defense, however, McIn stated that some one had taken the knife from him three or four days before Turner was killed, and that he saw it on the ground near the latter's head, he recognized it as his and picked it up. McIn denied most emphatically that he assaulted Turner with any weapon. He said that as he came out of the Crown Hotel he saw Turner and that he struck the latter in the chest. This blow felled Turner to the ground. In accounting for the manner in which Turner received the stab in the left side of his head, McIn contended that Turner had a knife in his hand, and that when he fell the blade penetrated his brain. The testimony of the physicians who attended Turner while at the hospital was to the effect that he was a man in the prime of youth, weighed about 175 pounds and was six feet tall. McIn is about thirty-five years old, weighs about 125 pounds, and is five feet seven inches tall.

Taylor, 4 weeks; and Sidney R. Jones, 3 weeks.

Attempt to Pick a Pocket Charged.
Charles Asher, colored, twenty years of age, was locked up at the first precinct station last night by Policemen Simpson on a charge of attempted larceny. He denies the charge. It is said that Asher tried to pick the pocket of Mrs. Jane Coetz, who resides at 819 Thirtieth Street northwest. The alleged attempt took place at an auction sale on Pennsylvania Avenue north of the Capitol, where the pocket of Mrs. Coetz was taken by the police, and with some difficulty Policemen Simpson took the accused into custody. Asher is a laborer.

Excessive Assessments Alleged.
In the matter of the extension of Eleventh Street, Messrs. Lambert and Lambert, C. S. Bundy, Glen Cooper, and other attorneys, representing many of the property owners affected by the proposed extension, yesterday filed exceptions to the award made some time ago by the jury of appraisers. The exceptions raise objection to what is alleged to be the excessive assessments for supposed benefits accruing to the property holders. The constitutionality of the act of Congress authorizing the extension is also attacked.
